

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for generating and receiving traffic in a code division multiple access mobile communication system using a block spreading scheme. The apparatus and method for generating and receiving traffic sequences in a code division multiple access mobile communication system use a block spreading code, by a simple method, without increasing the complexity of a system, which is capable of improving receipt performance by reducing an MAI at maximum.